Amish Country Popcorn started, in a sense, many years ago when Brian Lehman’s parents encouraged him to grow popcorn in his garden when he was six years old. He sold it to his school teachers and relatives through his school years. When he graduated, he started marketing it on a larger scale. One thing lead to another and Amish Country Popcorn was born. The name comes from the area Brian lives in—the midst of Amish country. It is a small family-run business striving to grow, package and sell a quality product.
